

Joshua Simon

FOUNDER, SIMONCRE

Joshua Simon founded SimonCRE in 2010 in order to carry out his vision of building a real estate development company that focuses on using impeccable service and superior technology to assist clients.

A seasoned real estate professional with over 12 years of experience in leasing, development, and finance, Joshua leads SimonCRE's growth strategy.

Prior to founding SimonCRE, Joshua spent over six years as an independent contractor for Sandor Development in the capacity of a Developer and Senior Leasing Associate. With his help and guidance, the Sandor Arizona office opened and grew from three employees to more than twenty. His primary role was the due diligence, acquisition, design, development, and leasing for more than 1.6 million square feet of retail space located throughout the country. In addition, he also managed the construction portion of Sandor's projects.

Joshua has always been a very active entrepreneur. He founded a hosted VoIP company in 2010, which specialized in business communications called One Stop Voice. After almost four years of growth, he sold it to a publicly traded company to focus on the tremendous growth SimonCRE was experiencing.

Joshua received his undergraduate degree from Arizona State University in Tempe, Arizona with a focus in business and communications.
